

The Vasati Online Course

Vasati – based on the natural laws of Vastu

Vasati is an integral architectural concept. Since millennia, houses, temples, and even whole cities are built by this concept in India. It's basis are the natural laws of spatial energy, and this knowledge is used to bring the living space in resonance with nature and its inhabitants. The house is like a man's second body.

It is a lens focussing the natural environmental influences. The quality of the living space influences our physical health as well as our mental and emotional status.

We may think that environmental factors could in any way influence our health, for example the Earth's magnetic field, the subtle energies from the Earth and Sun, the paths of Sun and Moon as well their gravitation, etc. All these influences taken together, define the quality of a room we are living in. You can view the room as a biological-field which interacts with the bio-energetic field of the human body.

While building a house one shall consider the effect of these interactions which underlie the laws of nature, according to the Vasati style.

The Indian scientist A. R. Hari did an investigation on this and found out that most chronic diseases are a reflection of the living situation. If the natural laws of spatial energy are violated, the manifestation of chronic diseases seems to be furthered, while a strong bioenergetic living field strengthens the power of resistance of its inhabitants. The old Indian geomancy Vastu has been shaped into a scientific system after millennia of experience and observation. With this you can find out the effects of environmental influences on man. It is founded in the sacred measure system of

Already the villas of Andrea Palladio were planned according to the principles of Vasati. Also Vitruv, the pioneer of Roman architecture drew knowledge from the Indian Vastu scriptures. This underlines the significance of the Vastu principles as a n important root of European architecture.

the Sthapatis, the south Indian masterarchitects of the Vishvakarma clan. Each region and culture uses its own measuring systems and by choosing a particular system one gets into resonance with the energy of the respective culture where this system is rooted. system and the basic measure of the Sthapatis is derived from the circumferences of the earth, the moon and the sun. It resonates with the ancient and famous vastu structures of Chidambaram and Shri Rangam.

Marcus Schmieke, born in 1966 in Oldenburg- Germany, is the author of eight books on the subject matter of Vasati. He is the Vasati pioneer in Europe and the founder of Vasati, the modern scientific form of Vastu. He has studied physics and philosophy in Hannover and Heidelberg universities and has been taking long study trips in India, where he was initiated into a Vedic spiritual tradition. Among other branches of knowledge, he has successfully studied Vasati, Vedic astrology, Sanskrit, Vedic philosophy and metaphysics in Indian monasteries. He graduated in Vasati studies with a diploma at the prestigious South Indian institute Vasativedyapratisthanam.

He studied Vedic astrology under the guidance of different masters of Northern India.

In 1994 Marcus Schmieke cofounded the magazine Tattva Viveka as a forum for science, philosophy and spiritual culture. He wrote a number of books on the subject of natural science, life processes and consciousness (Science and Consciousness 1995, The Fields of Life 1997, Subtle Energies in Science and Medicine 1997).

With the foundation of the Veda Academy on Weissenstein Castle in 1996 he started an institute for the integration of science and spirituality that became well known in Germany. 1998 The Veda Academy moved to a new location near Dresden where the focus of his works became more concentrated on the research and teachings of Vasati, Ayurveda, Sanskrit and Vedic Astrology. His training in modern science as well as in the ancient knowledge of the Vedas allowed him to find the scientific basis of Vasati in a simple set of mathematical formulas, describing the resonances of gravitational waves with space and matter.

Marcus Schmieke's comprehensive Vasati book "The power of living space" has become a standard work of Vasati in German language. In his book The twelve laws of success for proper housing he formulated the twelve laws of architecture for the first time. On the basis of this open architectural system he developed Europe's first Vasati training in correspondence courses. Presently, he is attending to Vasati students in more than ten countries. His eight books on this subject have been translated in more than fifteen languages and have been published even in India, the country of the origin of Vasati. Additional to his books on Vasati Marcus wrote four books and a two year correspondence course on Vedic Astrology and is teaching astrology students all over Europe. Besides his work as a trainer for Vasati and Vedic astrology, as well as his being an author and scientist, Marcus Schmieke is globally active as a planner of Vasati houses and also does international consultations.

The Veda Academy

The Veda-Academy connects-research and teaching of scientific and educational institutes in more than ten countries not only in Europe but also in other parts of the world. The mission of the Veda-Academy is to integrate ancient spiritual wisdom and modern scientific knowledge for solving the urgent problems of the present world situation for the individual person as well as for the society as a whole.

In year 1996 Marcus Schmieke, the president of the Veda-Academy, started to realize this vision by founding the Vedic Academy in south Germany at the Weissenstein castle. In the following ten years he inspired similar academies in different European countries like England, Hungary and Croatia. Veda-Academy developed its own virtual online campus where it offers courses in Vedic Architecture (Vasati), Vedic Astrology and Sanskrit.

The Veda-Academy has moved its base to a larger facility in Kraenzlin (near Berlin). Its focus of interest is pointed towards offering spiritual solutions for urgent material problems. The members of the Veda-Academy are convinced about the value of vedic wisdom and spiritual experience for giving guidance for the progress of science, economy, politics and the life of the modern people.
